

AOD FUNDED WITHDRAWAL AND INPATIENT SUPPORT OPTIONS (NSW)

A Resource for Parents written by Family Inclusion Strategies Hunter Peer Parent Expert

There are times when parenting, grief, trauma, or stress can feel too heavy to manage with standard community support alone.

If you're struggling to cope in your community, more intensive support options – including alcohol and other drug (AOD) services – can provide additional care, structure, and support during difficult periods.

Here are some NSW options if you feel this is for you.

AOD residential rehabilitation

Residential rehabilitation is the psychological care and support for people in an AOD-free residential community setting. Programs may be medium to long-term in duration (4 weeks to 12 months) and provide a range of support services such as individual and group counselling, physical health and well-being, and education and skills training. Some residential rehabilitation services provide programs for populations with specific needs, such as young people and women with children/pregnant women or families.

Rehabs often have long waitlists that require checkin with the rehabs weekly.
